

THINKING ABOUT GRADUATE SCHOOL? - ENROLL IN A *PRE-GRADUATE SCHOOL INTERNSHIP!

Open to undergraduates in all UT Colleges and Schools
CMS 164M, 264M, or 364M

“This IE internship has opened my eyes to possibilities I never before had contemplated. It has allowed me to think about my education and discipline from the bottom up rather than the top down. How odd that it took until my final year and a class outside my field to be given the opportunity to make these discoveries.”

“I owe my new-found optimism and excitement to the IE program. Through this internship I learned that I must take control over and responsibility for my life, without any time constraints or deadlines. I'm not going to let other people push me around and dictate my choices. This is my life, and I'm going to do something great with it. Why is this the first chance at UT where I have been allowed to wrestle with these issues?”

“A doctorate was something I had never considered, but now I feel it is one career path I would want to pursue. The IE program broadened my career choices.”

This internship is an opportunity for bright UT students to work closely with a graduate student mentor. Throughout the semester, the intern will discover those unique aspects of graduate study that make it distinct from the undergraduate experience, e.g., conducting research, serving as teaching and research assistants, participating in seminars, etc. The internship projects and assignments are determined by the mentor and the intern collaboratively. Dr. Richard Cherwitz, Professor of Communication Studies and Founder of the IE Program and the director of the Pre-Graduate School Internship will hold workshops and meetings to allow interns to share their experiences.
