COURSE DESCRIPTION

Recent Congressional debates over immigration have highlighted the varying approaches that politicians would like to take in order to control the flow of immigrants into the United States. One can argue that the attacks of September 11th brought the issues surrounding immigration to the fore, unlike any other event in the last century. Other attacks such as the Madrid bombings, the murder of Theo Van Gogh, the London bombings and the Paris “riots” (aka “uprising”) have also highlighted issues of immigration and integration. In the last decade countries around the world have had to examine the ways that they secure their borders and control the flow of people in and out of their country. In an era of uncertainty, how can we pursue policies that will ensure the security of our borders without closing off flows which are often considered necessary to economic security?

The course will begin with an examination of immigration law and policy in the United States. Other issues to be covered include the economics of immigration, refugees and asylum seekers, and security issues since September 11th. A comparative approach will be used to provide a counterpoint to the U.S. case, as well as to examine the international forces which underpin migration flows.

TEXTS

Daniel Tichenor, Dividing Lines: The Politics of Immigration Control in America
Givens, Freeman and Leal, Immigration Policy and Security: U.S. European and Commonwealth Perspectives

Other texts will be available online or via Blackboard (marked with an * in the course outline below). Readings are subject to change, depending on current events.

GRADING and ASSIGNMENTS

This course is designed to provide students with an overview of immigration law and politics in the U.S. and other parts of the world, particularly Europe. Students will be provided with the historical background and information on specific issues needed to analyze current immigration policy, and describe the arguments for and against particular policies. Student achievement of these goals will be assessed through exams and written assignments as described below.

To receive credit for the course, students are required to complete all assigned readings, to attend lecture, participate in class discussions, and to complete ALL assignments. There will be two exams and a final written project which will be a 3-4 page paper describing a way to reform some aspect of U.S. immigration policy. SI sections are voluntary but will help with your participation grade.

Over the course of the quarter, all students will be asked to write 4 short in-class assignments (a.k.a. pop-quizzes). These will be unannounced and will ask you to respond to a question or two about the readings for the day. These assignments will be part of your participation grade. There will be 10 regular weekly written assignments, most of which will help you to think about your final project. These assignments will be short – at the most you will be asked to write a paragraph or two. The assignments will be given out at the end of class each Wednesday (also available on the blackboard website) and are due at the beginning of section the following Friday – you will have more than a week to complete each assignment. ALL ASSIGNMENTS MUST BE TURNED IN AS HARD COPY – NO EMAILED ASSIGNMENTS. The overall grading breakdown is as follows:

Exam 1	20%
Exam 2	20%
Weekly assignments	20%
In-class assignments & Participation	20%
Final Project	20%
Total	100%

I reserve the right to grade on a curve if the average grade for an exam falls below a B.

Students will also be offered the opportunity to receive up to 2 points of extra credit which will be added to the final grade at the end of the semester. There is the option to watch a movie and write up a report, or attend lectures that will be announced during class. If you hear of a talk or lecture which would be appropriate for this class, please contact the professor.

Make-up Examinations

Make-up examinations will only be given in the case of a legitimate absence – documentation of an illness or other conflict must be provided to the instructor. If you are unable to take an exam, you MUST provide a legitimate excuse ASAP (at least within 3 days) or you will be given an F.

Late assignments

Assignments not turned in at the beginning of lecture on the due date will be penalized.

Incompletes

An incomplete is given only when the student has been in attendance and has done satisfactory work until within two weeks of the end of the quarter and has furnished proof satisfactory to the instructor that the work cannot be completed because of illness or other circumstances beyond the student's control.

In general, if you are having any difficulties over the course of the semester, contact the professor as soon as possible and accommodations can be made. Don't wait until you get your final grade to let us know about any problems or illness you are having.

University of Texas Honor Code

The core values of The University of Texas at Austin are learning, discovery, freedom, leadership, individual opportunity, and responsibility. Each member of the university is expected to uphold these values through integrity, honesty, trust, fairness, and respect toward peers and community.

Documented Disability Statement

The University of Texas at Austin provides upon request appropriate academic accommodations for qualified students with disabilities. For more information, contact Services for Students with Disabilities at 471-6259 (voice) or 232-2937 (video phone) or <http://www.utexas.edu/diversity/ddce/ssd>

Use of E-Mail for Official Correspondence to Students

E-mail is recognized as an official mode of university correspondence; therefore, you are responsible for reading your e-mail for university and course-related information and announcements. You are responsible to keep the university informed about changes to your e-mail address. You should check your e-mail regularly and frequently—I recommend daily, but at minimum twice a week—to stay current with university-related communications, some of which may be time-critical. You can find UT Austin's policies and instructions for updating your e-mail address at <http://www.utexas.edu/its/policies/emailnotify.php>

Religious Holy Days

By UT Austin policy, you must notify me of your pending absence at least fourteen days prior to the date of observance of a religious holy day. If you must miss a class, an examination, a work assignment, or a project in order to observe a religious holy day, I will give you an opportunity to complete the missed work within a reasonable time after the absence.

Behavior Concerns Advice Line (BCAL)

If you are worried about someone who is acting differently, you may use the Behavior Concerns Advice Line to discuss by phone your concerns about another individual's behavior. This service is provided through a partnership among the Office of the Dean of Students, the Counseling and Mental Health Center (CMHC), the Employee Assistance Program (EAP), and The University of Texas Police Department (UTPD). Call 512-232-5050 or visit <http://www.utexas.edu/safety/bcal>

LECTURE CAPTURE

This class is taking part in a lecture capturing experiment. As part of this experiment, audio and projected material presented in class will be recorded and made available to you for review via Blackboard. Links for the recordings will appear in the 'Course Documents' section on the Blackboard page for this class.

To watch a recording, simply click on the link for the recording, enter your UTEID information and select the version of the recording you want to watch (use High Speed if you have a fast internet connection and Low Speed if you have a slower connection). You will need Flash installed on your computer to view these recordings (<http://get.adobe.com/flashplayer/>).

Please remember that this is a trial of the lecture capturing system, so an issue might arise that could prevent material from being made available in a timely fashion or at all. Although every effort will be taken to keep the system running, UT does not guarantee the availability of these recordings. Attending class is the only way to insure your viewing of the professor's presentation.

You can find additional information about the lecture capture system as well as report technical issues at: <http://www.utexas.edu/cola/information-technology/faqs/echo360-faq.php>
