Miss Lillian Wester was born at Olathe, Kansas, in 1872. Shortly afterward, the family moved to a farm near Barry, Missouri, and in 1883 to Texas, living first for a time at Round Rock, then at Bagdad and finally at Taylor.

Miss Wester was sent in 1890 to Kirkwood Seminary in Missouri. She was graduated in 1891 from that school and for several years taught in the country schools near Taylor. After two years in the Taylor schools, she went to the Palmore Methodist Mission School (also called the Mary Keener Institute) at Chihuahua, Mexico. After two years at this school, she moved to Mexico City, where she remained until 1912. During this time, she wrote for "Mexico Today," the official publication of the Mexican national railways. For this publication and for the "Mexican Herald," she wrote "feature stories." Eventually, she was assigned by the paper to report diplomatic news, and it was in this capacity that she attended the ceremonies accompanying the centennial of Mexican independence.

In 1912, because of the revolution, she left Mexico and, after a trip to Europe, settled in San Antonio, where she began to write for the "San Antonio Express," and for a woman's magazine published there at that time.

In 1915 the magazine sent her to Chicago to cover the national convention there of women's clubs. After the convention, she entered the summer session of the University of Chicago to study French and Spanish.

That fall she taught in the high school at Winnetka, Illinois, and after a summer at Northwestern, she re-entered the University of Chicago, teaching in the city night schools to finance her stay.

Although she had not as yet earned a degree, she taught French and Spanish from 1916 to 1919 in the junior college of the State Normal School at Lacrosse, Wisconsin. By summer work and by correspondence completed while teaching here, she completed in 1919 the courses required for the Ph. B. at the University of Chicago. She then taught for a year in the Austin High School of Chicago while working on a master's degree, which she was awarded "with honors," in 1923, "in absentia," for she had in 1921 become instructor of Romance Languages at The University of Texas. This position she was to occupy for thirty years until her retirement in 1951.

Miss Wester was a member of A. A. T. S., of M. L. A. and, eventually, of the National Association of Retired Teachers.

She continued to live in Austin after her retirement, taking an active interest in affairs of the Spanish Department and composing sketches, poems, stories and her memoirs, published in 1952 as "Memories of Mine."

Miss Wester's journalistic experience made her quite conscious of current events and personalities, so much so that one of her colleagues once remarked, "If Miss Wester does not know about it, it hasn't happened."

Her students all liked her, for as she says in her memoirs, "I was an enthusiastic teacher and always had pleasant relations with my students, for I was greatly interested in them." She was convinced that no effort was too great if it promoted knowledge of Spanish, and for many years she taught free classes in Spanish for members of the American Association of University Women (A. A. U. W.). She also gave her time without stint to many other similar projects.

During her long years of service, Miss Wester was always a valuable asset of the Department.

L. M. Hollander
H. J. Leon
Katherine E. Wheatley
[Lancaster E. Dabney]
Miss Lillian Wester was born at Olathe, Kansas, in 1872. Shortly afterward, the family moved to a farm near Barry, Missouri, and in 1883 to Texas, living first for a time at Round Rock, then at Bagdad and finally at Taylor.

Miss Wester was sent in 1890 to Kirkwood Seminary in Missouri. She was graduated in 1891 from that school and for several years taught in the country schools near Taylor. After two years in the Taylor schools, she went to the Palmore Methodist Mission School (also called the Mary Keener Institute) at Chihuahua, Mexico. After two years at this school, she moved to Mexico City, where she remained until 1912. During this time, she wrote for "Mexico Today," the official publication of the Mexican national railways. For this publication and for the "Mexican Herald," she wrote "feature stories." Eventually, she was assigned by the paper to report diplomatic news, and it was in this capacity that she attended the ceremonies accompanying the centennial of Mexican independence.

In 1912, because of the revolution, she left Mexico and, after a trip to Europe, settled in San Antonio, where she began to write for the "San Antonio Express," and for a woman's magazine published there at that time.

In 1915 the magazine sent her to Chicago to cover the national convention there of women's clubs. After the convention, she entered the summer session of the University of Chicago to study French and Spanish.

That fall she taught in the high school at Winnetka, Illinois, and after a summer at Northwestern, she re-entered the University of Chicago, teaching in the city night schools to finance her stay.

Although she had not as yet earned a degree, she taught French and Spanish from 1916 to 1919 in the junior college of the State Normal School at Lacrosse, Wisconsin. By summer work and by correspondence completed while teaching here, she completed in 1919 the courses required for the Ph. B. at the University of Chicago. She then taught for a year in the Austin High School of Chicago while working on a master's degree, which she was awarded "with honors," in 1923, "in absentia," for she had in 1921 become instructor of Romance Languages at The University of Texas. This position she was to occupy for thirty years until her retirement in 1951.

Miss Wester was a member of A. A. T. S., of M. L. A. and, eventually, of the National Association of Retired Teachers.

She continued to live in Austin after her retirement, taking an active interest in affairs of the Spanish Department and composing sketches, poems, stories and her memoirs, published in 1952 as "Memories of Mine."

Miss Wester's journalistic experience made her quite conscious of current events and personalities, so much so that one of her colleagues once remarked, "If Miss Wester does not know about it, it hasn't happened."

Her students all liked her, for as she says in her memoirs, "I was an enthusiastic teacher and always had pleasant relations with my students, for I was greatly interested in them." She was convinced that no effort was too great if it promoted knowledge of Spanish, and for many years she taught free classes in Spanish for members of the American Association of University Women (A. A. U. W.). She also gave her time without stint to many other similar projects.

During her long years of service, Miss Wester was always a valuable asset of the Department.

L. M. Hollander
H. J. Leon
Katherine E. Wheatley

Lancaster E. Dabney